

---

Panellist bios

Putting research into practice

Presented by the Centenary of Anzac Centre, Professor Mark Creamer will lead a studio-based panel discussion exploring the practicalities of translating research into clinical practice.

The activity is delivered as part of the Mental Health Professionals' Network's Working Better Together Conference 2019.

Activity broadcast time:

12.30 pm – 1.30 pm, Tuesday 28 May, 2019

Panel:

Professor Meaghan O'Donnell

Head of Research at Phoenix Australia and past president of the International Society for Traumatic Stress Studies. Leads international research collaborations focussing on improving health outcomes in Australian military and veteran populations.

Professor Malcolm Hopwood

Professor of psychiatry at the University of Melbourne and director of the Professorial Psychiatry Unit at the Albert Road Clinic in Melbourne. Previously director of the Veterans Psychiatry Unit and the Victorian Brain Disorders Program at Austin Health. Adviser to the Department of Veterans' Affairs.

Ms Jane Nursey

Jane Nursey is the Director of the Centenary of Anzac Centre Practitioner Support Service and a Clinical Neuropsychologist. With 25 years' experience in the field of trauma related mental health, Jane has worked with veteran, military and high-risk industry personnel, as well as children, adolescents and communities impacted by disaster. Jane provides consultation to practitioners about a range of veteran mental health and specialist neuropsychology issues.

Professor Mark Creamer (facilitator)

Professor Mark Creamer is a clinical and consulting psychologist with over 30 years' experience in the field of post-traumatic mental health.

Mark is internationally recognised for his work in the field; providing policy advice, training and research consultancy to government and non-government organisations, with the aim of improving the recognition, prevention and treatment of psychological problems following stressful life events.

Mark is a Professorial Fellow in the Department of Psychiatry at the University of Melbourne and has an impressive research record with over 180 publications.